My name is Brian and I've been offering clinical supervision for 13 years. My background is working with marginalized populations directly, and supporting other clinicians who do - including folks struggling with homelessness, poverty, and substance misuse. I work as clinical director of counselling for a coastal First Nation, and also do individual and group consultation and supervision in my independent practice. I come to the work with a social justice lens and predominantly from a narrative therapy framework. My style is collaborative and strengths-based when I am supporting other counsellors. I have supervised many masters in counselling interns over the years, and support associate counsellors in my company. If I can support you or your team with training or supervision, please let me know.
