I am a BIPOC Japanese Canadian counsellor with 30 years counselling and special education teaching experience in public schools. I graduated with a Master's in Counselling Psychology and Special Education from UBC and Master's in Environmental Education from SFU. I operate a private practice and am an instructor and course writer for Queen's University.

I am passionate in supporting youth, families and individuals from diverse backgrounds and needs. My approach is to connect with clients in an open, and non-judgemental manner, while considering their personal values, strengths and self-autonomy.

I have completed courses in Expressive Play Therapy, Synergetic Play Therapy, Nature Therapy, Mindfulness Based Therapy, Sanyas Indigenous Cultural Safety, BCFED Mental Health First Aid, Understanding Emergency Worker Trauma and Understanding Firefighter Culture and Trauma.

If you are interested in becoming an RCC and/or considering private practice and would like to learn more contact me.
