I have been practicing as a Registered Clinical Counsellor for over 8 years working in various settings including education, non-profit, and private practice. My supervision and consultation approaches incorporate Laura Brown's supervisory feminist therapy principles including attending to power, boundaries, and hierarchy in supervision. In addition, I have a strong foundation in Acceptance and Commitment Therapy (ACT), queer theory, mindfulness and self-compassion.

My supervision/consultation approach is to balance providing practical and process support from a relational framework. I completed Clinical Supervision training led by Jane White where I learned to apply the Seven-Eyed Model of Supervision. I know that many people have encountered problematic experiences with supervision and consultation and I strive to tend to these past experiences while providing healing new experiences.
