Kira is an experienced counselling practitioner with years of expertise in the field. Kira holds a master's degree and is registered as a full-time student in the Doctor of Counselling and Psychotherapy program at Yorkville University. Kira's areas of focus in clinical supervision include enhancing therapeutic skills, ethical decision-making, and promoting self-reflective practices among clinicians. Kira employs a strengths-based approach, ensuring that supervisees feel supported and empowered in their professional development. Additionally, Kira integrates Kolb's experiential learning cycle to facilitate dynamic and interactive supervision sessions, encouraging continuous growth and learning. Kira's goal is to foster a collaborative and culturally safe environment where clinicians can explore complex cases, develop effective interventions, and maintain their professional well-being. Through Kira's supervision, she aims to cultivate a community of competent, reflective, and ethically grounded counselling professionals.
