Hi, my name is Angela Lee, and I am a registered counsellor and clinical supervisor working out of Langley, BC, as well as a counselling diploma program director and instructor. I approach supervision from a systemic perspective, with a special interest in developing the person of the therapist. I focus on common elements in supervision and seek to provide support within supervisees' adopted theoretical orientation(s). I adjust supervision methods to fit the confidence and skill level of supervisees as they develop and grow professionally, and seek to address identified concerns based on supervisees' work settings and career aspirations. I identify as second generation Chinese-American, have studied Eastern and Western values, and I have received training in Indigenous cultural safety. I value exploring the impact of diverse cultural identities and experiences in our work as counsellors, as well as navigating the space of integration between faith beliefs and ethical clinical practice.
