Peggy is a registered art therapist, clinical supervisor, and clinical counsellor with over 25 years experience.

Peggy works in Aboriginal health and has lived and worked rural, remote and on-reserve. She is currently on the faculty of 3 post graduate schools. Peggy is also a critical incident stress debriefing (CISD) specialist.

Her work is influenced by contemplative and somatic practices, ecopsychology, feminist, strengths-based, trauma-informed, approaches to wellness and healing. Peggy specializes with women, children, youth, adults and families. Peggy strives to reflect cultural-relational competency and honor diversity in leadership, project development, therapy and clinical supervisory capacities.

Peggy's clinical supervision model is the 'developmental model' which focusses on a learning frame and self-reflection which enhances clinical/therapist wellness.
